A global call to action for a human-centred recovery from the COVID 19 crisis that is inclusive, sustainable and resilient.

The coronavirus disease ( COVID 19) pandemic affects human lives in society of all countries.

It has led to human health and communities' damage unemployment and business income of both employers and employees.

The crisis has caused poverty and widen inequalities among countries worldwide.

Accordingly, urgent and coordinated action is needed as the following commitment :

1. The governments and employers' and workers ' organizations are working with the support of ILO for a human-centred recovery from the COVID 19 crisis.
2. The tripartite is placing the aim of full, productive and freely chosen employment and decent work.

The main targets are :

1. Inclusive economic growth and employment .
2. Protection of all workers.
3. Universal social protection

ILO is playing a leadership role in advancing a human-centred recovery from The COVID19 crisis and is using all its means of action to support the design and implementation of recovery strategies that leave no one behind by
